DEMOCRACY IN ACTION

I am writing my contribution to the May edition of the church calendar on the day that the Prime Minister has asked Her Majesty The Queen to dissolve Parliament in order that a General Election might take place on 6 May. The date itself is not a surprise, as nearly every political commentator, town hall and election official in the country had reckoned on that being the most likely day for the ballot. What is surprising is the nation's apparent uncertainty as to which party should lead the nation out of recession. Conversations revolve around the possibility of a hung Parliament, and supporters of minority parties are excited at the prospect that their leaders might exert some degree of influence in the formation of a coalition government, or at least be consulted over the composition of a new ruling structure.

As we endure together the coming four weeks of electioneering, what place does our faith hold in the process of assessing the candidates for our local constituency, and what role do our religious convictions have in determining which party is to receive our allegiance? There is a consistent voice that calls for civil and religious freedom in our small but influential dissenting tradition, and that voice has often spoken out in favour of sections of our society that the political parties failed to consider in their plans for the future. Have we any equivalent concerns today in modern Britain? Are there people or groups of people for whom we should have a special concern as the politicians talk about "a more just society" and "fairness for all"?

On 6 May 2010, I encourage you to exercise your right to vote. In the weeks leading up to that date, I would also encourage you to examine the policy statements made by the local candidates and by their party leaders, and judge them in the light of your faith. "Truly I tell you: anything you did for one of my brothers here, however insignificant, you did for me." [Matthew 25.40]

MEDITATION GROUP

The May meeting of the group will take place on Thursday evening, the 27th, from 7.30 to 8.30 p.m. Light refreshments are always served at the end. Newcomers are always welcome to take part in this monthly exploration of different methods of meditation. If you would like further information, please speak with the minister (telephone 0161 764 4925).

BOOK CLUB

The book to be read for Monday, 24 May will be announced in the course of Sunday services from 2 May onwards, as it will be decided at the April meeting. The group will next meet on 24 May at 7.30 p.m. All are welcome.

JAM JARS

1 lb jam jars are needed by Barbara Ashworth. Please note she has plenty of the smaller jars.

POINTS OF INTEREST FROM COUNCIL MEETING

The following issues were discussed at the recent Council Meeting on 12th April

The result of the voting regarding Chalice Lighting was: 44 for, 14 against, and 1 invalid voting paper, a total of 59 votes in all. Council agreed to go with the majority vote and accordingly chalice lighting will continue at the beginning of our Sunday services. Attempts will be made to acquire a plinth which fits in better with the other furniture in Church.

Anyone wishing to do a reading during the Sunday morning service but preferring, for whatever reason, not to do so from the pulpit may do the reading from their seat in the congregation by using the hand microphone. Anyone interested in doing this should speak to the Minister.

Sue McMullen has kindly agreed to help June Clarke with the children on a Sunday morning.

Many thanks were extended to Betty Kenyon for the lovely, welcoming children's corner which is impressive and has already been put to good use.

Enquiries are being made about a visit to Kendal Unitarian Church on a Wednesday in the summer when it would also be possible to go to see the Quaker Tapestry.

A budget has been agreed for the purchase of a plaque listing all past and present Ministers of this Church, including Chesham and Heywood.

Membership applications were accepted for Lynda and Ewan Arthur and Roy Holden.

Risk Assessment for this Church and its members is continually monitored and updated. Regulations to ensure the safety of people in the upstairs hall should a fire occur during an event are to be adhered to by the 'responsible person' and these will be displayed on the noticeboard and circulated to all key holders.
